Concept note-

School of Law, Sushant University (erstwhile Ansal University) invites papers on various dimensions of law and its relationship with other academic streams. Understanding the concepts, theories of law, and the legal system in entirety requires recourse to history, psychology, economics, international relations, philosophy, and other academic disciplines. The connections between law, science, and technology are ubiquitous and are entwined in complex modern societies. The legal paradigm regulates the entire matrix of human activities and no stream of society is outside its ambit. Needless to say, law cannot function in isolation and co-habits with all the other academic disciplines.

The international conference intends to provide a premier interdisciplinary platform for academics, researchers, educators, practitioners, and students. We invite you to present and discuss the most recent innovations, trends, concerns as well as practical challenges encountered and solutions adopted in the field of Law, Humanities, Management, Science and International Relations.
